Give them great tools

From sleepovers to long swimming days and trips to amusement parks—when school is out, kids seem to have it made. But between all the big activities, there’s a lot of downtime for creativity, learning, and fun that busy parents might not always have the tools to manage.

In this story, we’ll take a look at some ways Microsoft 365 can help parents connect with their kids and keep them busy during those long school vacations.

Foster their interests

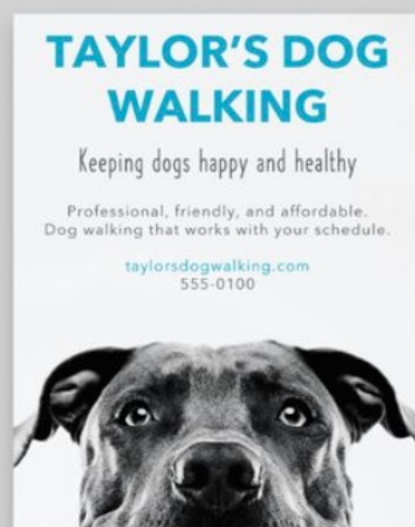

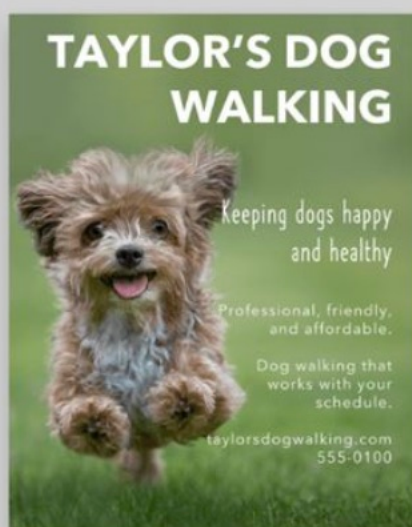

Longer school vacations can result in learning loss that can impact everything from test scores to academic achievement.

While some children have the capacity to bounce back easily, others may have a more difficult time.

To keep kids engaged, use Microsoft 365 to create fun activities that let kids show off everything they've learned in school!

Spark their imagination

Help kids make their great ideas a reality with premium templates.

When they use their Microsoft 365 family subscription, they'll have access to thousands of premium templates for Word, Excel, and PowerPoint across a variety of topics, styles, and seasons. Then can then edit, share, and store their projects with access from any device.

With so many fun ideas to choose from, they're sure to make an impact in whatever they do!

Invitations

Use these professionally-designed templates to plan colorful (real or imaginary) get-togethers!

Activity tip: Have them create an invitation to the setting of their favorite book to learn how to retell stories and identify key details.
